Teenage lifestyles today

You are a parent of a teenager. You see this in your local newspaper and you decide to respond.

A recent report compares today’s teenagers with previous generations of teenagers.

It claims, for example, that young people are less likely to help in the home, or study after school.

Teenagers nowadays also spend more time watching television and meeting their friends.

As a parent, do you agree with these views?

We would like to print your comments in next week’s paper.

Write your comments in a letter to the newspaper.

Henry V

Act 3 Scene 1 (whole scene)
Act 4 Scene 7, lines 45 to 104

Imagine you are going to direct these extracts for a class performance.

What advice would you give to help the actor playing Henry to convey his different moods before and after battle?

Support your ideas by referring to both of the extracts which are printed on the following pages.

Henry V

Act 3 Scene 1 (whole scene)

In this extract, Henry urges his soldiers to show great bravery in battle.

Enter the KING, EXETER, BEDFORD and GLOUCESTER

Alarm. Enter soldiers with scaling ladders at Harfleur

KING

Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more,
Or close the wall up with our English dead!
In peace there’s nothing so becomes a man
As modest stillness and humility.
But when the blast of war blows in our ears,
Then imitate the action of the tiger:
Stiffen the sinews, conjure up the blood,
Disguise fair nature with hard-favoured rage.
Then lend the eye a terrible aspect,
Let it pry through the portage of the head,
Like the brass cannon. Let the brow o’erwhelm it
As fearfully as doth a gallèd rock
O’erhang and jutty his confounded base,
Swilled with the wild and wasteful ocean.
Now set the teeth and stretch the nostril wide,
Hold hard the breath, and bend up every spirit
To his full height. On, on, you noble English,
Whose blood is fet from fathers of war-proof,
Fathers that like so many Alexanders
Have in these parts from morn till even fought,
And sheathed their swords for lack of argument.
Dishonour not your mothers. Now attest
That those whom you called fathers did beget you.
Be copy now to men of grosser blood,
And teach them how to war.

And you, good yeomen,
Whose limbs were made in England, show us here
The mettle of your pasture. Let us swear
That you are worth your breeding, which I doubt not,
For there is none of you so mean and base
That hath not noble lustre in your eyes.
I see you stand like greyhounds in the slips,
Straining upon the start. The game’s afoot.
Follow your spirit, and upon this charge
Cry ‘God for Harry, England and Saint George!’

Alarm, and chambers go off [Exeunt]
Act 4 Scene 7, lines 45 to 104

In this extract, Henry responds to the killing of the boys, and discovers he has won the battle.

Alarm. Enter KING Harry, [EXETER, GLOUCESTER, WARWICK, and English HERALD,] and BOURBON with prisoners. Flourish

KING I was not angry since I came to France
Until this instant. Take a trumpet, herald.
Ride thou unto the horsemen on yon hill.
If they will fight with us, bid them come down,
Or void the field. They do offend our sight.
If they’ll do neither, we will come to them,
And make them skirr away as swift as stones
Enforcèd from the old Assyrian slings.
Besides, we’ll cut the throats of those we have,
And not a man of them that we shall take
Shall taste our mercy. Go and tell them so.

[Exit English Herald]

Enter MONTJOY

EXETER Here comes the herald of the French, my liege.

GLOUCESTER His eyes are humbler than they used to be.

KING How now, what means this, herald? Know’st thou not
That I have fined these bones of mine for ransom?
Com’st thou again for ransom?

MONTJOY No, great king.
I come to thee for charitable licence,
That we may wander o’er this bloody field
To book our dead, and then to bury them,
To sort our nobles from our common men,
For many of our princes – woe the while –
Lie drowned and soaked in mercenary blood,
So do our vulgar drench their peasant limbs
In blood of princes, while the wounded steeds
Fret fetlock deep in gore, and with wild rage
Yerk out their armèd heels at their dead masters,
Killing them twice. Oh, give us leave, great king,
To view the field in safety, and dispose
Of their dead bodies.

KING I tell thee truly, herald,
I know not if the day be ours or no,
For yet a-many of your horsemen peer
And gallop o’er the field.
MONTJOY The day is yours.

KING Praisèd be God, and not our strength, for it.
What is this castle called that stands hard by?

MONTJOY They call it Agincourt.

KING Then call we this the field of Agincourt,
Fought on the day of Crispin Crispianus.

LLEWELLYN* Your grandfather of famous memory, an't please your majesty, and your great-uncle Edward the Plack Prince of Wales, as I have read in the chronicles, fought a most prave pattle here in France.

KING They did, Llewellyn.

LLEWELLYN Your majesty says very true. If your majesties is remembered of it, the Welshmen did good service in a garden where leeks did grow, wearing leeks in their Monmouth caps, which your majesty know to this hour is an honourable badge of the service. And I do believe your majesty takes no scorn to wear the leek upon St Tavy's day.

KING I wear it for a memorable honour,
For I am Welsh, you know, good countryman.

LLEWELLYN All the water in Wye cannot wash your majesty's Welsh plood out of your pody, I can tell you that. God pless it and preserve it, as long as it pleases His Grace – and his majesty too.

KING Thanks, good my countryman.

LLEWELLYN By Cheshu, I am your majesty's countryman! I care not who know it. I will confess it to all the woreld. I need not to be ashamed of your majesty, praised be God, so long as your majesty is an honest man.

KING God keep me so.
